

1) Thank you sir for yesterday's meet. I loved it very much. I have recollected our entire discussion since 4:08 am and listing down only few important points -

2) I think the best part was you understood the problem to the core. You have carefully eliminated suggestions which were not apt.

3) You understood that I'm not in peace due to Nischal not been there with me. Also you understood that I have already done whatever it is possible (visitation rights). You have also understood that Nischal is in safe hands (Sailaja). You then reminded my core interest of doing social service which I was actively doing before marriage (at least 5-6 solid activities and a long term activity). I liked your suggestion of visiting special kid's orphanages, deprived/trafficked girls orphanages.

4) You understood that I'm tensed with my life ambition. I liked your suggestion that don't speculate or have doubts in mind that something wrong is happening behind the scene. Just work and give your best.

5) You understood that I'm hating god for what he has done for Nischal. Then, I have asked how can God justify his act? Suppose two people had done wrong to each other and it impacted third person who was not part of the wrong things done by both above. You told it might be "purva janma sukrutham" which at least I could not digest. You also told there is no answer for this question. But what was the ultimate line was - "You are hating God means you believe God is there". This statement has enlightened me so much. You further told it's good to hate God, it's good to question God. Ultimate answer was you said Pray for God for Nischal. There I got clean bowled and started taking snacks with sense of satisfaction.

I had hot water then, hand washed and then the next point. Thanks a ton to Ramya who has initiated this. I was almost like leaving your place.

6) You understood that I was thinking - what Nischal will achieve in his life (as he might not become a doctor/engineer etc. or at least an autowala). You also understood that I'm not feeling good for what others will think about me leaving the special kid after giving birth at the age of 9. You also understood that I have plans of Nischalsoft Consulting Services which had 4 core points. Then you come with an ultimate answer - You said all Rushi's/Saints who are trying to achieve something which Nischal has already achieved. "Nischal is free of Raga Dwesha, full of innocence, does not know how to hurt others, he is himself self-contained" Now I broke I cried for your answer and crying again now. You have again nailed the situation.

7) Of course what you have told me are the once that are not new to me. But those ultimate lines which when were given in a situation gets the power. We miss small things and worry about big things. You made me clear those small things when I brought a situation and made me happy. I have seen glitter in your eyes at least 3-4 times in yesterday discussion of around 2 hours.

It was a perfect ending for our discussion yesterday. You have nailed it so well. I believe that GOD has planned this meeting through you for me now.

=> You have given suggestions like my appa. I feel like you are my appa at least for myself. Thank you for yesterday meet. I'm blessed and feel little more confident and happy that my unanswered questions are little answered. I will restart my daily prayers for Nischal. Thank you so much appa, Thank you. I'm very active in offering prayers going to temple on Tuesday and breaking a coconut on Saturday till the time I married.

I didn't tell you my father died due to the complications (severe brain haemorrhage) a raised after angioplasty at Yashoda Hospital, Somajiguda. Dr. Name was Ganesh Mathan. The worst part is my sister gave birth to a baby girl (around 9:45 am) on the same day of my father's death. I was taking my dad to graveyard and my brother in law(BIL) seeing from the maternity ward as hospital was just close to our house and we have to pass it to go to main road.

It was first tragedy of my life and Sailaja is second tragedy. Till 02 Aug 2006, I was a blessed kid till that time. My life went on a toss on 26th Aug 2006(5:46 am). I got married on 28th Mar 2008 and there was a decline since then. Lot of stress, emotions, heavy cry came out writing this to you appa. I feel I'm blessed to meet you.

I know I made you very emotional. I'm sorry for that appa.

I had good sleep 2 hr 18 min deep sleep and 3 hr 27 min light sleep, total of 5hr 45min.

With you permission, can I share this to my Sister/BIL who are in Canada, Ramya (your daughter), my advocate and her husband (who became very close to me)?
